HEAVY DOWNPOUR AT OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma City, Ok., July 1.—Rain-fall that almost reached the proportions of a cloudburst occurred in some sections of Central and Southwestern Oklahoma today. Up to noon seven inches of water had fallen since last night in and around Weatherford, sixty miles west of here. Mangum got a soaking to the extent of nearly three inches.

More than five inches fell in and around Oklahoma City up until late this afternoon. The hardest rain came shortly after 2 a. m., flooding the streets beyond the storm sewer capacity, until in some sections the streets were running water several inches in depth. There has been considerable damage, particularly in the business section, where the water poured over sidewalks and into basements.

There was a few inches of water in the basement of the City Hall, a foot of water in the basement of the State National Bank, the Tucker furniture company's building, the Oklahoma furniture company's building and the Western Bank Supply building. About five inches of water ran into the basement of the Lee Huchins Hotel and other buildings in the vicinity. The deepest water was in the basement of the Central fire station, where it was nearly ten feet in depth. More or less water in most of the buildings in the business part of the city is reported.

The most serious damage perhaps is at the Lawrence building, where the Supreme Court is located. The state has many valuable law books, a part of the state library, stored in the basement here, and there is two feet of water in the basement. It is feared that the books will be a total loss.

All streams are up and the local street car and interurban lines were badly hampered. Little railroad trouble is reported. Crops in some sections are believed to have been damaged by the heavy downpour, and particularly is this believed to be true in the vicinity of Weatherford. All sections of the east and northeast are said to have received moisture during the day.

The Weather Bureau reports the following records: Altus .95, Chandler .10, Bartlesville .36, Chickasha .62, Marlow .39, Shawnee 19, Stillwater .90

TRIED TO BRIBE GOMPERS

PRESIDENT OF LABOR FEDERATION TELLS OF ACTIVITY OF LOBBYISTS.

Washington, July 1.—With witnesses headed for Washington from many directions to testify on the new development in the senate's lobby investigation, Senator Overman gave a hint tonight of further sensations in the committee's activities.

An inquiry has been under way for some time, it is understood, into the operation of paid press bureaus conducted by large corporations and "interests" and the committee expects to determine to what extent paid publicity agents are employed to attempt to influence public opinion or direct federal legislation.

Charges of Martin M. Mulhall, former representative of the National Association of Manufacturers, regarding his lobbying operations, will not be opened formally until next Tuesday. Tomorrow's hearings will be devoted primarily to the testimony of Wall street men believed to have information as to lobbying activities in New York in which the names of Congressmen are freely used.

Developments today indicated that officers of the senate and members of the lobby committee have been busy secretly for several days securing new information, the nature of which is concealed, Senator Reed, who went to New York yesterday, is said to have acted for the committee unofficially in obtaining the names of the desired witnesses.

If you Value Your Eyesight, an Expert Ophthalmologist I have spent 20 years preparing myself to perfect the refraction of the eye. My modern equipment, backed by this long experience is your Guarantee of Satisfaction. A. D. COON, Ramsey's Drug Store, Ada, Okla.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who figured prominently in Mulhall's story as the object of a long-continued attack by those who attempted to bribe him and force him to give up his fight in behalf of labor legislation, has made public a detailed report.

The report is one that the labor leader prepared in 1907 after his experience with Broughton Brandenburg now a convict in Sing Sing. It shows that efforts to secure private interviews with Gompers aroused the latter's suspicion and he took a number of labor leaders into his confidence and later made a full report to them of the occurrences that followed.

Gompers met Brandenburg, the report says, under the advice and suggestion of other officials of the American Federation of Labor. Brandenburg, it says, represented himself as in charge of a bureau organized to expose the immorality and dishonesty of the leaders in the labor movement.

According to his report, Gompers led Brandenburg on until the latter proposed that Gompers should prepare a general statement in the nature of a confession; should stand for re-election as president of the American Federation of Labor in 1908, and then should resign, leaving the federation of Labor crippled by his retirement and the exposure of its leaders.

The Gompers report states that the interview terminated there; that Gompers kept the paper Brandenburg had prepared for him to sign and that Vice President Duncan and other officials of the federation were acquainted with the circumstances.

Lewis Cass Ledyard, Paul Cravath and Maxwell Everts, New York attorneys and David Lamar, a Wall street operator, have accepted telegraphic summons to appear before the committee tomorrow. The work of the lobbyists in Wall street, where names of congressmen have been used over the telephone in connection with demands upon railway and financial officials, will be the subject of the hearings.

WOULD REDUCE SIZE OF AGRICULTURAL BOARD

Oklahoma City, July 2.—The people of the state will have another opportunity on August 5 to vote on the recall of the present board of agriculture, not in the same form as that offered in the last election through Senator Campbell Russell's famous initiated bill, "No. 23," but in an entirely different form. The resolution by Senator Barrett of Shawnee, which passed both branches of the legislature Monday night by a unanimous vote, providing for the reference to a vote of the people a proposed constitutional amendment reducing the size of the board from eleven to five members, contains a provision, which, if adopted, will take away the jobs of at least six of the present members of the board and possibly the entire eleven.

The proposed new amendment provides that the board of agriculture shall be composed of five members, who shall serve in "lieu" of the present board, and if the amendment is adopted, under the general law of the state, the governor has the authority to name the board forthwith. Inasmuch as the bill will abolish the board as now constituted the governor under the authority given him to fill vacancies in elective offices will name the members of the new board.

Friends of the present board of agriculture in the legislature, utterly ignorant of the presence and meaning of the little words "lieu" stood by the bill and gave it their cordial support along with the avowed enemies of the board.

When the true meaning of the proposed amendment became known at the meeting of the board of agriculture Tuesday morning the various members gave vent to their feelings and expressed themselves in no uncertain way as to their opinion of Senator Campbell Russell and the legislature in general. It is said:

"The governor may reappoint any of the present members of the board he sees fit, in the event the bill is adopted.

This will be the second time in a year that the recall of the board of agriculture has been voted on. A vote in favor of the adoption of the proposed new section is equivalent to a vote to recall the board.

The resolution originally was introduced by Senator Barrett who was ably assisted in putting it through by Senator Campbell Russell of Warner, president of the People's Power league, which backed the last initiated bill which recalled the former board.

Commenting on the bill Tuesday night Senator Russell said:

"The legislature certainly voiced the sentiment of the people in that vote. It was unanimous in both the house and the senate. I had to call the Skirvin and get one senator out of bed to make out thirty votes. I have yet to hear the first protest against the bill from anyone who is interested on personal grounds.

"You can't reduce a board from eleven down to five without someone losing a job. A few protests are unavoidable. We could never find a better opportunity. Right now while these suits are pending neither side can tell who will lose the job. Each side will be a little glad and a little sad but the public, like the legislature, will be unanimous."

HOW ONE WOMAN WON

Her Health and Strength Back Again by The Use of Cardui.

Tampa, Fla.—In a letter from this city, Mrs. E. C. Corum writes: "I was all weakened and worn out with womanly troubles. My husband brought me some Cardui as a tonic, and, from the first day, it seemed to help.

I had almost lost my reason, but, thanks to Cardui, I did not. Soon, I felt and looked like a new woman. I think the remedy is wonderful. I recommend it to my friends, for I have received great benefit from it."

Cardui acts specifically on the weakened womanly organs, strengthening the muscles and nerves, and building them up to health.

It helps to refresh the worn-out nervous system and relieves the effects of overwork, both mental and physical.

Fifty years' successful use fully prove the merit of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women.

In every community, there live some who have been benefited by Cardui. The beneficial effects of this time tested woman's remedy, soon show themselves in many different ways.

GRAND RALLY OF BRITISH BOY SCOUTS

Birmingham, England, July 2.—To demonstrate that recreation and amusement are not only aims of their organization the British Boy Scouts today opened their first Imperial Scout Exhibition at the Bingley Hall here. Seven thousand Scouts are quartered in the permanent camp loaned by Lord Glanusk, but it is expected that there will be over 30,000 boys at the final great rally on Saturday next, when General Sir Robert Baden-Powell will hold a review.

Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck, the former of whom is Queen Mary's brother, performed the opening ceremony today, and expressed themselves surprised and delighted at the scope of the exhibition and the versatility of the boys. They were presented with the first copy of the Daily Scout, a newspaper which will report the proceedings and the progress of the movement during the week.

The boys will do their own reporting, write special articles and "leaders," edit, sub-edit, set up the type, and print and publish the paper on the spot. The Daily Scout will have a special feature in news by wireless in readiness for which a wireless installation has been set up, both at Bingley Hall Park, four miles away where Saturday's review will be held.

Boxing, fencing, wrestling, and quarter-staff contests have been arranged by Rev. Everard Digby, London's "fighting parson," who is the Scouts' chaplain, as well as being a member of the National Sporting Club in addition to Scouts engaged in every kind of handicraft, there are Scouts who sing, play musical instruments, and perform old English dances.

One of the features of the exhibition will be the repair of a better on cottage by Scouts, who mend gas and water pipes, fix up damaged shutters, attend to door locks, clean out flues, patch roofs, etc. Each squad of repairers dismantles the cottage for the next batch to operate upon. Hon. Roland Phillips, son of Lord St. Davids, is in charge of this section. The exhibition is of international character, for among the exhibitors and competitors are scoutmasters and patrols from the United States, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Austria, Denmark and Sweden.

Carter Introduces Dead Claim Bill

Washington, July 2.—Representative Carter of Oklahoma has recommended the appointment of J. C. Groves as postmaster at Porum, Ok., a presidential office.

Mr. Carter has reintroduced his dead claim bill, the purpose of which is to settle the controversy between the federal department and the Oklahoma courts as to jurisdiction of inherited estates in cases where the allottee died prior to the passage of the restriction act of May 27, 1908.

It has been the contention of Mr. Carter that the act of May 27, 1908, gave the Oklahoma courts full and final jurisdiction and both the Oklahoma Supreme Court and Federal Court of the Eastern District of Oklahoma have so decided.

WHY GIRLS LEAVE

SCHOOL EARLY

(By Burton K. Sandish)

Washington, July 2.—Interesting because of its bearing on the testimony as to girls' employment recently investigated by the Illinois senatorial "white slave" probing committee is a bulletin just issued by the Bureau of Education. It attempts to tell "why girls leave school," and it is written after a careful study of trade and labor conditions among girls in Worcester, Mass., preliminary to the establishment of a trade school for girls. The conclusion reached is that from one-half to three-fourths of the girls at work in factories could have had further schooling if they had wanted to, or if their parents had cared to insist on it.

The survey shows that the number of girls between 14 and 16 years of age who leave school is constantly increasing. During the past five years many more girls between those ages left the Worcester schools than can be accounted for by increase in the population. Only about 17 per cent of them had finished the grammar schools; most of them left in the sixth and seventh year. Worcester is taken as a fair index of any of the manu-ing they might have liked and would have profited by, they blindly joined the army of shifting, inefficient discontented girls that go from one monotonous factory job to another and, because of their lack of training, rarely rise above the class of low-paid, unskilled workers.

facturing towns in the country.

Why did these girls leave school?

Various reasons were assigned by the girls themselves. Some thirty said they "did not like school; could not get along with the teacher; were not promoted, or wanted to go to work." Two were working to help pay for a piano. One of these was a cash girl of 14 years who had left the ninth grade to go to work in a department store for $2.00. Later she got $2.50 per week. Another was a girl of 15 from the eighth grade, who went to work in a corset factory for $1.00 and rose to $4.32 per week. Still another girl was taking music lessons and contributing to the payment of a piano.

Twenty-seven girls were found at home. In some cases they had left school to help with the housework, while a few left at a time of temporary stress and then had not returned. Four girls had changed places with the mother, who worked in a corset factory, laundry, or some such place, while the girl, whose wage-earning power was small, kept house for the mother of the children.

Curious differences as to what the parents thought they could afford were discovered. The mother of a family of eight children living apparently in squalor poverty, would have been glad to have sacrificed and pinched still further to have had her daughter stay in school longer, if she would. The mother of another family of six (living in a comfortable apartment house, with hardwood floors, piano and other luxuries, said her daughter wished to stay in school longer, but the burden of supporting the family was too heavy for the father to bear alone; so the girl was taken out of school to go to work. A visit to a Swedish family revealed a carpenter and his wife, a washerwoman, who had just built and owned a new three-story apartment house. Yet the 15 year old daughter with a seventh grade education had been sent to work in a papergoods factory at $2.00 per week. The question "why did you leave school?" was put to 338 more mature workers in the corset trade. Ninety-one per cent of these women had left school between the ages of 14 and 16, and fully 50 per cent because of their dislike of a school or because they wanted to go to work. Of 74 workers in a clothing factory, 85 per cent had left school between the ages of 13 and 16, and of these 25 per cent left school of their own volition.

In the opinion of the Board of Education conditions such as found at Worcester emphasize the imperative need for special training of a practical sort for girls between 13 and 15. In the main the girls left school simply because they disliked the school work. Not getting the kind of train-

The Perfect Baby Of The Future

A Simple Method That Has a Wonderful Influence upon The Future Infant.

Too much can not be said for a wonderful remedy, familiar to many women as Mother's Friend. It is more eloquent in its action than all the health rules ever laid down for the guidance of expectant mothers. It is an external application that spreads its influence upon all the cords, muscles, ligaments and tendons that nature calls into play; they expand gracefully without pain, without strain, and thus leave the mind care-free and in joyful anticipation of the greatest of all womanly ambition. Mother's Friend must therefore be considered as directly a most important influence upon the character and disposition of the future generation. It is a confessed fact that, with measles, pain, nervousness and drowsiness, there is stored up such an abundance of healthy energy as to bring into being the highest grade of those who fondly theorize on the rules that insure the coming of the perfect baby. Mothers' Friend can be had at any druggist at $1.00 a bottle, and it is unquestionably one of these remedies that always has a place among the cherished few in the medicine cabinet. Mother's Friend is prepared by the Braddick Regulator Co., 139 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., after the formula of a noted family doctor. Write them for a very instructive book to expectant mothers. See that your druggist will supply you with Mother's Friend.

Interest in Ritchie-Rivers Battle.

San Francisco, Cal., July 2.—With the near approach of the date for the fight between Willie Ritchie and Joe Rivers public interest in the battle has increased to a noticeable extent. It will be the only contest on the entire Fourth of July calendar in which a title is involved and will be the first fight in which Ritchie has engaged since he won the championship from Ad Wolgast. The prevailing opinion that Rivers is capable of giving the champion a hard fight for the title and the long end of the purse adds to the interest that is being manifested in the bout. Eddie Graney, who is the promoter of the contest, expects a record-breaking crowd at the ringside. Both of the fighters completed their hard work of training today and will take it easy until the gong calls them into the ring Friday afternoon. Judging from the reports given out at their respective training quarters there is little to choose between the two fighters so far as physical condition is concerned.

The Daughter of David Kerr

By Harry King Tootle

Illustrations by Ray Walters

(Copyright, 1918, by A. C. McClary & Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl who has spent most of her life at school, arrives at her father's home in Belmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town and is anxious to prevent his daughter learning of his real character.

CHAPTER II—Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper.

CHAPTER III—Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft.

CHAPTER IV—Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Gilberts. It appears they are on intimate terms, having met previously in a touring party in Europe.

CHAPTER V—Gloria twists Wright on his failure to keep an engagement to meet her in Paris. He explains that the death of his mother prevented his going to Paris.

CHAPTER VI—The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the furnishing of the Kerr home.

CHAPTER VII—One society bud who refused to meet Gloria is forced to do so when her father is made to feel Kerr's power.

CHAPTER VIII—Wright begins his fight against the proposed franchise in the columns of his paper, the Belmont News.

CHAPTER IX—Kerr, through his henchmen, exerts every influence to hamper Wright in the publication of his paper.

CHAPTER X—Gloria realizes she is not being received by the best society and is unhappy. She takes up settlement work.

CHAPTER XI—Kerr and his lieutenants decide to buy Kerr's paper and ask the editor to meet them at Gilbert's office.

CHAPTER XII—Wright in his desire to keep from Gloria knowledge of her father's position, avoids her during the fight. Gloria is piqued.

CHAPTER XIII—Calling at Gilbert's office to solicit a donation Gloria meets Wright. He proposes and is accepted while waiting to be called into the conference.

CHAPTER XIV—Wright refuses to sell his paper and declares he will fight to a finish.

CHAPTER XV—The Belmont News appears with a bitter attack on Kerr. Gloria calls Wright a coward and refuses to listen to any explanation from him.

CHAPTER XVI—Broken-hearted, Gloria decides to plunge more deeply into settlement work.

CHAPTER XVII—She calls on a sick girl of the underworld named Ella.

CHAPTER XVIII—She learns for the first time that her father is the head of a notorious gang of political grafters.

CHAPTER XIX—Sounds of a conflict are heard in the room over Ella's. Gloria finds Wright unconscious, a victim of an attempted assassination by thugs in the pay of the political ring. She hides him in Ella's room and defies the thugs.

CHAPTER XX—She awakes them by announcing that she is Kerr's daughter. Ella threatens to give up Wright to the thugs and is choked into unconsciousness by Gloria, who then falls unconscious on Wright's body.

CHAPTER XXI—They are rescued by Dr. Hayes and his wife. Wright is taken to a hospital and Gloria is taken to the Hayes home. Wright decides to sell his paper and leave Belmont.

"I'm afraid the love one must beg for wouldn't be worth having, Joe. You wouldn't be happy with me. No matter where we went you couldn't forget what happened here. Then consider me—if you'd ever be absent-minded for a minute, gazing into space, I'd know you were thinking of Belmont and the opportunities you'd thrown away because of me. I couldn't stand it. I'd always feel that you were recalling the past and regretting the present. It would kill me. No, Joe, I couldn't."

Wright's proposal had been totally unexpected by Gloria. Up to the time he had begun to plead with her to go away with him, she had maintained fair control of herself. His generous offer, as she termed it, had pierced her armor of reserve and laid bare her warm, quivering heart.

"Pride, Gloria, pride," the man whispered. "It's pride that's keeping you from being true to yourself and true to me."

"Don't speak to me, Joe," she sobbed; "I can't stand it."

In his heart he yearned with all the ardor of youth and love to gather her in his arms and comfort her. Yet he knew her well enough to know that it could not be. Her humiliation had rendered impregnable the barrier she had erected between them. There was naught he could do but suffer in silence while she wept.

CHAPTER XXIII

Gloria bated herself for the paroxysm of emotion to which she had given way in the presence of the man whose love she had rejected. There was no interpretation to be put upon it save that her nerves were overwrought, yet she did not know how he would construe her tears. She did not wish him to think her weak. Suddenly the girl remembered that tears were a woman's weapon. The thought so enraged her that in her anger at being so much a mere woman she forgot to weep. She had in her the spirit of her father. Drying her eyes hastily, she turned to say good-by.

Wright saw her turn and held out her hand. Could she have changed her mind? His heart prompted this thought, but one glance at her face told him she was still determined to go her own way alone.

"Good-by," she said.

"Is it to be good-by, Gloria?"

"That, and nothing more."

The man looked at her in a dazed manner. Now that the time of parting had come she had far more self-possession than he. He groped about in his mind for something to say, but words were inadequate. There is no telling how his feelings might have betrayed him had there not come a knock at the door to interrupt their parting.

At the sound Gloria exclaimed with a start, "Who's that?"

Wright walked to the door, saw who asked for entrance, and opened it wide for Patty to enter.

"Mr. Joey, there's a man says he must see you at once."

"Did you tell him I was busy, and to wait?"

"Oh, yes, just like you told me, but he said to tell you he was David Kerr!"

"My father!" Gloria took a step forward. Her exclamation told what a surprise this news was to her.

"What does this mean?" he asked.

"You know as much as I. I've told you I've never seen my father since that day in Judge Gilbert's office. He's been busy with politics, but, more than that, I've—well, I've preferred staying with Mrs. Hayes."

Patty, tired of listening to a conversation she could not understand, and remembering the visitor, asked: "What shall I tell him?"

"Wait a minute, Patty," Wright motioned the child to the door. Then he turned to Gloria. "You can leave by this side entrance. No one will be the wiser for this visit. The minute the door closes behind you, Patty—and I will have forgotten that you called. But I will not have forgotten your kindness and consideration. Before you leave I want you to know that I can't value too highly the motive that prompted your call. To the end I'll treasure it as a memory hallowed by the parting from the only woman I—Good-by."

He felt he could not complete what he wished to say without a show of emotion to which it would not do to give way. The only thing he could do was to hold out his hand and say, "Good-by."

Gloria put both her hands behind her back and shook her head.

"No, I refuse to go."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean just what I say. I intend to stay here and meet my father and hear what he has to say to you."

Wright gazed at her intently, but she did not quiver under his scrutiny. "It shall be as you say," he assented. "Go, Patty, tell him to come in."

After Patty closed the door there was an awkward silence which he broke by saying, "I must say that this meeting is ill-advised."

She sighed and shook her head.

"Oh, ill-advised or not, my mind is made up. Things cannot go on as they are. If henceforth I am to direct my own affairs, why shouldn't I begin now?"

"But how explain your being here?"

"If he can't believe what I have to say he isn't worth the slight esteem with which I still regard him."

"Here he comes."

"Let him see you first." She retreated to a corner of the room where her father's first glance as he entered would not discover her. Patty opened the door and David Kerr walked into the room.

The two men looked at each other without any attempt at a feigned cordiality.

"Mr. Wright," began the boss, and at mention of his name the newspaper man bowed slightly in recognition of the greeting. "I met Dr. Hayes this afternoon. He spoke of you, and what he told me has led me to break a custom of years; I've come to see you. In this town it's always been the other way."

He spoke with all his accustomed force, and seemed even more confident than usual as he added, "The old way will continue, sir, but owing to what you might call the relationship that once—"

"Sir!" thundered Wright in astonishment. covertly he looked at Gloria, to find his own amazement mirrored on her face.

"Bound up, I thought I'd come to see you," the boss continued, not heeding Wright's exclamation.

"One minute, sir," Wright was not willing for him to proceed without his knowing that his daughter was in the room with them. "Before you speak further you must know that we're not alone in this room."

"We're not?" He looked about him, and at the sound of a familiar voice turned sharply to confront his daughter.

"No, father; I'm here." She advanced coolly to the center of the room, and waited for him to speak.

"Gloria! My daughter here!" He managed to gasp. Wright, determined not to have his hand forced, waited to see what card the daughter would play.

"Wait a minute, please," she remarked quietly, the most self-possessed of the three. "Are you so blind you can't see you find me here because I wish it so? My visit to Mr. Wright surprised him just as much as did yours. When you were announced, I told him I would stay."

"So that's it, is it?" her father raged. "Have you turned against me, too? Why didn't I raise you like you ought to 'a' been?" It was with an evident effort that he was restraining himself even as much as he was.

"Would to heaven you had!" Gloria exclaimed in a low tone. "You gave me only the roses of life, and now the thorns—all that life offers me—seem sharper than I can bear."

Wright had thought his heart had been so wrung that nothing could hurt him worse, but this confession of unhappiness to her father made his own unhappiness greater than he had believed it could be.

"Gloria, this is distressingly painful. Please don't," he begged. Then he turned to her father. "Why have you come here?"

"Why is she here?"

"Father," now she spoke timidly, a maiden telling of a dear, dead love,

"for a little while Mr. Wright and I—were engaged—to be married. I don't think you know what that means to a girl, what it meant to me. But you do know how it ended. Yet we're still such good friends that I felt I could come this afternoon to—"

As she spoke, a great light began to dawn upon her father. At the words "good friends" he saw his whole plan successful, although worked out along lines a trifle different than what had been in his mind when he had determined to call upon the editor. Your successful general is a great opportunist, and David Kerr was quick to seize this opportunity.

"Good friends!" he echoed, interrupting her. "Then I'm glad I found you here. Just listen to me a minute. I ain't got much to say, Mr. Wright, but we understand each other pretty well. Now then—you gave us a pretty hard bump, an' I admire you for it. Of course, you're new to Belmont an' it looks all right from yer p'int of view." His tone was now suave and conciliatory. "But you're too good a man to be blockin' the wheels of progress in this town."

"Things were running pretty smooth when I came here, weren't they?" Wright was willing to admit that much.

"Exactly, exactly," Kerr took a step forward and glanced at Gloria before he went on. "Now then, what do you say to this? You switch over an' join me. If it's too strong fer you to go, I'll cut out that Maple avenue railway line, an' we'll go at it some other way."

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur It Makes Hair Soft, Beautiful; Cures Dandruff

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmothers' time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But the brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so just insist upon getting Wyeth's, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says the customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because, they say, it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.
